And spirits, barren of illusion, To whom all agonies are clear, Rush on the naked heart and cry Of every poignant shining thing Where there is little left to die And no more Spring. Hazel Hall Where It Is Winter OW there is frost upon the hill George O Neil Frailty, Thy Name Is--OCREDULOUS and constant, though I tell Over and over crazy golden things, Yet you believe them: though I say, Her wings Were moondrift ; or A bright red cockerel Stalked across the sky at sunset, fell Into a pool of stars, and left white rings Of water-dust on darkness ; your hand clings Tightly to mine, your heart accepts the spell. Some day I shall begin, She struck a bell Of raindrops in the lupin s rocking steeple. And when I look up, you will murmur, Well? Quite like a hundred million...
