Excerpt: . V PARITY OF BEING PARITY OF BEING I DEGREES HIS opens the way to the next branch * of the subject. If the human soul could reside in objects, why should not these objects themselves possess spirits? The evident conviction of early and primitive races as to the existence, form, and substance of the human soul has, it is believed, been adequately presented in the foregoing. But is the possession of soul limited by these races to humanity? Do primitive peoples regard other beings as also so endowed? The definition of animism already furnished involves an affirmative answer, but we must look a little further into this phase of the subject. There is an epigram of Christian pantheism which declares that God sleeps in the stone, dreams in the plant, awakens in the animal, and is selfconscious in man. * This expresses in some...
