He might not improbably add that such symbols and diagrams are of no interest to anyone except a few individuals who have an unaccountable taste for such things, and happen to be endowed with a peculiar transcendental faculty the possession of which is quite unnecessary for other people, and which he himself does not possess, and moreover that he is quite happy without it. If pressed, our friend would probably admit that there are subjects, such as Arithmetic and Mensuration, which are extremely useful, and some knowledge of which is essential for various purposes, but that such subjects are hardly Mathematics, and that anything beyond them is of little or no concern to the world in general. If, as is likely, he had himself, at school, studied a little Geometry and Algebra, he would say that the former is largely concerned with difficult and tedious proofs of things that are either obvious or meaningless, and that the latter is concerned with juggling with...
